To this end, each order should contain a form of words prominently displayed (in bold) on the front page of the order stating that the next hearing, unless there is a direction by the Judge otherwise, will take place remotely (that is to say the Judge, the parties and, where relevant, their representatives, will attend the hearing in different locations but by means of technology). Upon such an order being made, each party and/or their representatives must take immediate steps to obtain or ensure that they have access to appropriate technology in preparation for that hearing.
